

The environment

Once every few years, somewhere on Earth, a world conference is held on the global environmental problems. This mostly concerns climate change caused by the (enhanced) greenhouse effect.

However, there are many more problems, at all scale levels. Deforestation, desertification, acid rain and polluted seas and rivers are only a few of the known examples. In this chapter, you will study a number of these environmental issues more in-depth.

